

IT Bright - Company profile

Who is IT Bright

High morality and business ethics lead the founders to join their efforts and starting IT-Bright activities, based on their good, solid and reliable reputation. IT-Bright is based on more than 40 years of relevant combined experience in software development, team building and team-management, as well as National and International project management. The Indian office and development centre is located in Chennai (Madras), the fourth-largest city in India, capital of the state of Tamil Nadu and one of the three cities in 'the IT golden triangle'. The main goal of the founders was to bridge the communication and cultural gap between European/American companies and Indian software developers and experts.

A perfect management team with dedicated and skilled developers. IT Bright is growing... and growing fast. Of course in a responsible way and today IT Bright reached a point where we are able to accept customer-based development again.

When you need CRM software, adapted to your specific company needs, high-end web technology design for customer communication, serious database development or any other specific customer based software, IT Bright is the company you need. You will be directly in contact with the architects, designers and developers of your software: short lines, to make sure you are in control and your information is not filtered. You will have your solutions fast and they will be good, solid and reliable with an open architecture so add-ons in the future will be no problem. As you can see IT Bright is as flexible as you want us to be : where our competitors stop, we will go on and accomplish what we promise.

IT Bright is the answer to your software desires, IT Bright is there to make your work easier and more transparent.
